LONDON'S "GREEN" OLYMPICS

Are you planning an event any time soon? For example, a family barbecue, a picnic, a wedding, or something on campus such as a brown bag lunch or staff/faculty meeting. Have you considered implementing a few "green" practices into your event? It's not difficult; it can even be fun!

If you don't think you can do it or need a little inspiration, then be sure to explore the sustainability initiatives of the London Olympic games (http://www.london2012.com/about-us/sustainability). With hundreds of thousands of people onsite from over 200 countries, I would venture to say: if they can do it; you can do it!

What makes London the “greenest” Olympic games in history? Here are a few notable practices:

- The Games are "Zero Waste" meaning that most food packaging (such as coffee cups, napkins, disposable knives and forks) and all food scraps will be composted; all plastic bottles recycled during the Games will be made into new bottles within just six weeks; and all "garbage" will be used to generate electricity.

- With over 14 million meals being served during the Olympic games, the planning committee worked with vendors to provide healthy, affordable, culturally diverse, and organically sourced food options. Furthermore, with over 82 tons of fish being served, all of it will be from sustainably sourced fisheries making London the world's first Sustainable Fish City.

- The entire venue has been set up to encourage biking and walking.

These are just a few of the many sustainable programs underway at this year's Olympic games. With a little bit of planning, you too can incorporate a few simple practices into your events that will be appreciated by your guests and our planet. For a few basic suggestions, visit our green events webpage at http://www.colgate.edu/about/sustainability/greencampusinitiative/greenevents.

Contact the Sustainability Office (jpumilio@colgate.edu) with questions or to share new ideas/practices with the rest of the Colgate community.

LGBTQ Events

Let's begin 2012-2013 in PRIDE--LGBTQ Initiatives welcomes back current and new employees to campus! The Safe Zone training program is designed to help create a supportive campus by offering up to date information on the experiences of queer college students, issues of sexuality, resources and advocacy for LGBTQ issues. Faculty and staff are invited to participate in the Safe Zone training program by scheduling a group training, or attending an offered session. Organized by your colleagues, various social events are offered each semester to enjoy each other's company and take a break from the pace of the semester. These are open to all faculty and staff, and their families! Please join the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer & ally Colgate listserv by emailing lgbtq@colgate.edu.

Wellness Tip For August

Do you know immunizations help protect you or your child from disease? They also help reduce the spread of disease to others and prevent epidemics. Most are given as shots. They are sometimes called vaccines, or vaccinations. Visit excellusbcbs.com/health for information on immunizations.
